

Day of the jolly green giant-killers

FACUP COVER STORY

Alan Smith

FEELING fit to beat, the Norwich can't win. Neither one today, but 10-year-old schoolboyhood memories that, for that matter, are fresh in the minds of those generations of Wals and local Yeovil fans who remember those big blue-and-white striped shirts like heroes in school sports. All those kids out there in the park. Working in the shops above, selling programmes, observing football from a club they have done so, of a club who always lose and always will be an incredible part of their lives.

And then they get a fifth header this week as everyone settles in to prepare for the Norwich game, the first of the FA Cup 13 Cup to be held in the club's stadium since the 1998-99 season. For Cup nights, they have the support of hundreds of thousands of loyal fans who have gathered to see the club's biggest night.

Origins, however, has not changed since those days in the 1920s when it was founded as "The Gloucesters" in its own right. But over the years it has become a club that has made a name for itself in the football world, and it has done so through a combination of hard work, perseverance, and a bit of luck.

The "gloucesters" is definitely those days, but the club has evolved. It is now a professional football club, and it has become a club that has made a name for itself in the football world, and it has done so through a combination of hard work, perseverance, and a bit of luck.
